Newport itself is a cathedral and university city and unitary authority area in south east Wales. It is located on the River Usk close to its confluence with the Severn estuary, approximately 12 miles northeast of Cardiff. Standing at the gateway between England and Wales, Newport covers a geographical area of just over 73.5 square miles and is a vibrant, forward-thinking city steeped in a rich industrial heritage, dating from the nineteenth century when its important strategic location was first recognised. Newport is a multi-cultural city with its own unique atmosphere, where traditional industries sit alongside new electronics and financial service sectors.

Malpas Court

MEETINGS VENUE

Malpas Court is a Grade II listed Tudor-style mansion building designed by Thomas Henry Wyatt and built between 1834 and 1838 for Thomas Prothero, agent to the Morgan family of Tredegar House. During World War II, Malpas Court was used as a depot and became a rest centre. It has been beautifully restored in recent years and is now a community and business venue. Malpas Court has rooms for conferences, meetings, presentations and training.

Prothero and his business partner, Thomas Powell, became the principle coal exporters in south Wales.
